Firm Footing... Issue #1, March 24, 2020

A quick housekeeping note before we go any further...

Our firm believes strongly that open lines of communication and ongoing education is the key to getting through this Coronavirus, and any other crisis.

Our intention is to keep you informed, start a conversation, and maybe give you a little perspective on things.

We'd love to hear feedback on this ongoing outreach. Feel free to call us at the office, or email us anytime! Let's talk!

We hope you like what we have to say. And we're glad to be on this journey together.

With that being said...here we go.

Firm Footing... Issue #1, March 24, 2020

Talking Shop

In our office, we believe strongly in education. We choose to follow and study a cross-section of economists and market commentators, hoping to gain insight into the economy, the markets, and all things financial.

One such economist who stands out for us is Brian Wesbury. Here's a great, 10-min video on the COVID-19 situation and its short-term economic impact.

Keeping the Faith

It's no secret that many industries, including restaurants and hospitality, have been severely impacted by this nationwide disruption. Many businesses have had to adapt quickly to stay open, often reinventing their very business model in the process. Our friends at Galler Foods are no different.

Normally, they supply to some of your favorite restaurants across Memphis & the Mid-South. In the past few days, they've announced home delivery direct to the consumer. Everything from meat, eggs, and dairy, to seasonal desserts and side dishes. There are curbside pickup and delivery
